Xmas Vacation Starts December 19

BJC Roundup

Boise, Idaho, December 16, 1952

Pictured above are the choir students that took part in the annual Christmas vespers concert Sunday, December 14 in the auditorium on the BJC campus.

Concession Jobs

The following clubs have taken over the job of selling concessions for the basketball games at the Boise high school gym:

- Dec. 16—Northwest Nazarene, Associated Women.
- Dec. 20—College of Idaho, Newman Club and Interfaith Council.
- Jan. 8—Westminster, French Club.
- Jan. 9—Westminster, Morrison Hall.
- Jan. 13—Northwest Nazarene, B-Cubes.
- Jan. 29—Globetrotters, Valkyries and PiSigs.
- Feb. 4—Ricks, Driscoll Hall.
- Feb. 5—Ricks, Spanish Club.
- Feb. 20—Weber, I.K.'s
- Feb. 21—Weber, FTA.

A.W. Makes Plea

The A.W. urges all students to bring dry goods or make money contributions for their Christmas project. So far the cooperation has been very poor and as it is for a worthy cause, students should take part in this activity.

Butler Elected Chairman

Bill Butler, Bronco football star, will be chairman of the ticket taking at all the basketball games, according to Rex Fraser, student body president.

Butler is organizing his help so that all games will be handled efficiently and will be glad to receive any applications from students. For the Globe Trotter game Jan. 29 an extra large staff will be needed. Student activity tickets and complimentary tickets will not be honored at that game, so sign up with Butler to work and see the game without paying 74c.

FALSE ALARM

Some practical joker set the fire alarm off in Morrison Hall December 11, and sent most of the occupants out in the cold at midnight. After finding out that it was a false alarm the students went back to the hall and continued their interrupted slumber.

Morrison Hall News

The girls at Morrison Hall will exchange Christmas gifts Wednesday, Dec. 17, under the Christmas tree in the main lounge. The girls all drew names and could not pay over $1 for the gifts. Christmas carols will be sung and a short program is planned.

Dorm Dance To Be Held Jan. 11

Highlighting the social calendar for the students living in the dormitories will be a formal dance to take place on January 11. The affair will be held in Morrison Hall, with "Winter Wonderland" as the theme. General chairman of the affair is Miss Margaret Bailey. The dance is a girl-ask-boy affair, and is open to only those people living in the dormitories.

Happy New Year!

Choir Presents Annual Christmas Vespers Concert

The Boise Junior College A capella choir, under the direction of C. Griffith Bratt, presented its annual Christmas vespers concert at the college auditorium, Sunday, December 14, at 4:30 p.m.

Featured as the soloist for the program were Barry Binning, tenor; Delores Hanson and Ruthanne Fountain, violinists; Sharon White, soprano; Esther Beeson, soprano; Carol Crume, soprano.

Barry Binning appeared as soloist last February with the Boise Junior college band at its annual concert. Mr. Binning and Carol Crume are both members of the Boise Opera company.

This year the choir presented a varied program of selections from America, England, Moravia, Wales, France, Germany, and Sweden. Also three carols from the famous Oxford Book of Carols were presented by the choir, these selections included "A Virgin Most Pure", "Patapan", and "Here We Come A Wassailing".

This was the first of the series of Sunday vespers at the college this year. Other programs to follow are: The Boise Junior college community symphony orchestra, January 11; Kathryn E. Mitchell, violinist, and Carroll E. Meyer, pianist, February 8; Boise Junior college chamber players, March 8; the Boise Junior college a capella choir, April 12.

Office News

Mr. Potter's office has announced that all student time cards will be prepared at the close of business Tuesday, Dec. 6. Hours of employment for Dec. 17, 18 and 19 will be estimated. These cards must be filed at the business office not later than 11 a.m. Wed., Dec. 17.

Students cannot be paid on time who file cards after this hour and date. For work between Dec. 20-31 payment will be made at the close of the month.

Xmas Travel

Margo Linderman—I am going home with Lucille Spackman to Fairfield, Idaho.
Jerry Crandall—Just home to Nyssa.

Shirleen Shaffer—I'm driving my grandfather to Orland, California to see my sister.

Bob Donnelly—Skiing at Sun Valley, don't you think that will be exciting?

Sharon Morrow—I'll just stay at Boise and keep the home fires burning.

Marilyn Bishop—If you want me I'll be at Morrison Hall, when I'm not working.

Denny Williams—I'm going to Middleton, Idaho.

Kathy Ryan—Home to Weiser, and I'm going to stay there, too. I only wish I could.

Glenn Hossner—I'll be at home in Ashton.

Dorothy Chatburn—I'm going to stay in Boise as far as I know now. I may go to Idaho Falls to see my grandparents.

Jay Nelson—I'm going to Moscow, to spend my vacation.

Bunny Kane—I'm going to China. I'll visit my aunt "Chop Chop Kane" there.

Dr. Pehlke—Madison, Wisconsin for a family homecoming. I have not been home for 10 years. I went to grade, high school and spent a year at the university there.

Barbara Pritzle—I'm going to New Plymouth, of course.

Earl Smith—To Castleford, Idaho, where my home is and believe me I'll find something exciting to do.

Rex Fraser—I'm going to New York. Just wait and see.

Mary Louise Cottrell—I'm having a tea party.

Darlene Young—We'll have a taffy pull and some "parties." Wanda will be there too. Sounds like a lot of fun.

Bob Watson—I'll take in all the big exciting things during the Yuletide season and plan to attend the Rose Bowl also.

Norma Dike—I'm going to "Tim Buck Two." Doesn't that sound interesting? I think it will.

Merry Christmas!

POLITICS...

The triumph of a personality over a party was recorded in November by the voters of America. A man whose name was famous throughout the world and which struck terror into the hearts of the Nazi armies in the Second World War became the president-elect of the United States. His great personal attraction precipitated a near deluge of votes in his favor. He swept the Solid South with the effectiveness of General Sherman and his conquering days of 1864. He gathered the agricultural areas of the Middle West into the Republican camp. He burned a fiery path through New England and the industrial Atlantic states as well as the populous middle sections east of the Mississippi. The name Eisenhower was on the lips of the voters as they pressed the voting switches or marked their paper ballots.

In view of such an overwhelming landslide for Eisenhower it is strange to see that the landslide did not extend into the seats of Congress, where the Republican party holds a slim and shaky majority. Perhaps this is the proof that the voters of America selected the man above the party. They may have been quick to name Eisenhower as their choice for chief executive, but they were more wary in their pick of a state senator or representative.

There are those who say that the most desirable state of affairs is that in which, when the president is selected, the Congress should show a clear majority for his party, since in that way the campaign promises can be fulfilled to a greater extent than as is the case of a president of one party against a Congress of the opposition. A good example of that is the 80th Congress, which was dominated by the Republicans and the presidency, dominated by Harry Truman. The result was a stalemate with the minimum being accomplished and both parties being disappointed. Of course, the near split in Congress as it will occur in the 83rd Congress will result in a hair-splitting vote for the carrying of a measure.

It will prove of great interest to Americans to watch closely the developments in the next four years and notice which party really has the majority or the ability to swing votes away from their commitments and toward the more feasible measure. We can hope for the best, and with a Republican vice-president to cast a deciding vote in case of a deadlock, we can expect a tense fight on the floor of the Senate as well as the House.

The liberals of both parties will probably be the undecided faction in these tussles and their votes will have less to do with party lines than the old died-in-the-wool Democrat or Republican. But then we have the president and his influencing, although not all-powerful veto and the fight will go on.

Spanish Club News

Boise Junior College Spanish Club met Monday evening at 7:30 in the recreation room of Morrison Hall.

Feature of the evening was motion pictures of Bolivia shown by Col. Jack G. Parsons. He took the pictures while stationed in La Paz and commented on them both in Spanish and English.

Music was furnished by members of the night class in Spanish accompanied by Oliverio Ruiz on the guitar. Esther Beeson, advanced Spanish student, sang two selections.

Besides the business meeting and program, the balance of the evening was devoted to refreshments, games, and conversation.

Debate Contest

Mr. Bob Fifer, a well known business man and head of Fifer's Fair and Fifer's Appliances, is giving $30 as prizes for the best four debaters at Boise Junior college, at the final debate. The two winning men will receive $10 each and the two losing men will receive $5 each.

Mr. Harold Wennstrom, head of the speech department, has already organized his debate teams. They have had several debates, on and off the campus. The topic for this year is, "Shall We Have A Fair Employment Practice Law?"

Opportunity is being offered to any student interested in debating, to participate in this contest.

The final debate will be held some time during the spring semester, at which time the awards will be made.

Xmas In Flatbush

'Twas de night before Christmas
An' all t'rough de flat
Not a' animule was stirrin'
Not even a rat.
De stockin's was hung on de back of a chair
In hopes dat Saint Nickolas soon would be dere.
De Kids was all nerstled all snug
in dere beds
While t'oughts o' de Dodgers
danced in dere heads.
An ol' Ma in her pin curls and I
in de sack
Was snorin' away on de flat of me back.
W'en out in de street, dere arose
such a clatter,
Dat I jumped from de bed, to see
w'at was de matter.
Away to de window I flew like de
Flash,
Tore back de coiten, yanked de stick from de sash.
De moon, as it shone on de junk
pile below Gave de brightness of lunch hour
to de new fallen snow.
W'en w'at to my 'stounded peepers
should show
But eight horses wid horns on, an'
a sleigh on da go.
An' a chubby ol' guy, so bouncy
an' quick
That I caught on in a sec dat dis was Saint Nick.
An' quicker'n lightning, dem reindeer dey came,
An' he whistled an' hollered an'
called 'em by name:
"Now Ezra, now Jackie, now Pee
Wee, an' Banta,
On Newcombe, Furillo, Campa-
nella, and Branca."
Up to de first landing, den on to de next
An' dey all sailed on by, whilst
I stood dere perplexed.
As an old newspaper dat before gusts of wind rise
W'en it meets wid a lamp-post
climbs to de skies,
So up de fire escape dem reindeer
dey flew Wid de sleigh fulla toys an' de ol' buzzard, too.
An' den in a minute I heard all de scrape
O' de sleigh an' de reindeer on de fire escape.
As I pulled in my head and was turnin' around
In t'rough de window he comes wid a bound.

He's dressed up in fur from his head to his feet
An' in dat red outfit, he really looks neat.
A package o' toys is tossed over his shoulder
An' he looks like de peddler dat's down on de corner.
His eyes sure were twinklin'; his dimples was cute
An' both o' his cheeks were as red as his snoot.
His queer little mouth was puckered up in a grin
An' the hair on his head was growed kinda thin.
De stump of his pipe he was
knawin' on loud
An' de smoke, it covered his head
in a cloud.
He had a broad face, an' a paunch
like a pillow
Dat shook w'en he laughed like a bowlful o' Jell-O.
He was tubby an' plump, a happy
ol' coot
Dat sure enjoyed givin' an' dat is de trut'.
One wink o' his peeper as he grins
over his shoulder
An' I'm feelin' real happy, an'
awful lot bolder.
He never opens his mouth, but gets straight at his woik
An' fills up de stockin's, den toins
wid a joik,
An' puttin' his finger 'long side o'
his nose, an' noddin' his head
Out de window he goes.
He jumps in his sleigh, an' yells to his team
An' away dey all flits, like outta
a dream.
But he hollers back, 'fore he gits out o' sight
"A happy Christmas to youse all—Ye Gods, what a night."

Question??

What would you do with a "Phoradendron flavescens"? That is a good question! Here are the answers that some of our students gave.
Wynefred Bacon—Sounds like a germ that might cause dandruff!
Howard Adkens—Plant it and watch it grow!
Sharon Breshears—Hide it in the closet!
Mary Lou Edner—Tie a pink bow around it and set it on my dresser!
Mel Markus—Roast it!
ANSWER: mistletoe!

If You Got The Money

(Author's name withheld to protect the innocent)

Some girls have dreams of men,
they say,
With money, brains and looks.
And they have set their traps for them
And dangled all their hooks.
Some girls have seen their dreams
come true
And captured these rare humans
And still they're never satisfied—
They're on the prowl for new ones.
And is it true these millionaires
Are found where'er you go?
And if it's so—where hideth they?
For there are none I know.
Oh, yes, I know my share of men
Who may have brains and looks.
Their looks they can't account for
Their brains are due to books.
We sit and talk together
Over coffee in the caf
To think they'd ever take me out
Makes for a tortured laugh!
Now I'm not asking for the world,
Or days perpetually sunny,
My plea is curiosity—
Is there a man with money?
No, I don't want a millionaire;
A college man will do
With just the right amount of cash
To entertain us two.
I don't expect the Chase each date
A show and beer will do.
That takes a slight amount of cash
And satisfies one, too.
That's my request—the matter's slight.
But hope is at its peak
That a college man with dough in hand
Will come my way this week!
—From the University News, St.
Louis University, St. Louis, Mo.

Mary Gottenberg, Steve Emerine, Glnena Greer and Dr. Paul Baker, officers of the Inter-Faith Council. The Inter-Faith Council will put on the assembly Wednesday morning.

Our special student this week is Phil Bocking. Phil is a sophomore this year and is taking a course in business administration. After completing his studies here at BJC, Mr. Bocking wants to attend Stanford. On the top of his list for favorite pastimes, Phil likes skiing. He, by the way, is one of the fortunate few who have never had a serious injury from this breath-taking sport. On the campus Phil belongs to the IK's and the Ski club.

It is just about that time of year again when everyone makes New Year's resolutions. Starting early this year are some of the students on our BJC campus.

Sherman Snyder—I resolve that I'll leave "it" alone!

Kathleen Connor — (For Babe Craig's benefit) I resolve to sacrifice my "habitual smoking"!

Donna White—I resolve to go to all the formal dances here at school!

Freida Waldron—To go back to Klamath Falls within the next 10 years

Mary Louise Cottrell—Resolved to stop flirting with everyone except —?

Barbara Wilson—I resolve to be more prompt!

LeRoy Weber—I resolve not to skip any more classes.

Paul Petty—I resolve not to run out of gas when I'm with my girls.

Shirley Byrne—Resolve to do everything right that I did wrong this year!

Weiser, Parma, Glenns Ferry and Rupert high schools were guests of Boise Junior College for the regional dramatic festival December 6. Dramatic coaches for the schools also attended. Weiser placed first in class A schools, presenting "Late Holiday," and Parma first in class B schools, with the presentation of "The Valiant". Mrs. Barbara Bouditch, Miss Phyllis Fisher, and Mr. Wenstrom were judges.

Marvin Gardner acted as master of ceremonies and explained the direction of drama toward more intimate and dramatic presentation in colleges and universities. Arena staging, that is, placing the actors and acting area within a circle of audience, dramatic group reading using the so called "Lughton technique", and the trend toward poetic dramatic composition, all were demonstrated. The students have been invited to repeat the demonstration for other high school groups and arrangements are now being made to do so.

Members of the speech and play production classes, Rosalie Hartwell, Bunny Kane, and Philip Meagher of Boise Junior College presented a demonstration of play reading or experimental theater. James Walker had charge of lighting and Don Bagley and members of the Stagecraft class designed the scenery. The stage sets and lights are simple and movable.

The Valkyries have been busy lately with their food sales and their latest project, the trimming of the Christmas tree for the main hall. We all thank them for adding this Christmas cheer.

The I.K.'s are still selling theater tickets at the high school and the nurse's home. They are planning an initiation for Thursday, December 18th.

The Associated Women Students latest job is the collecting of food for needy families.

A student from Boise Junior College, Rod Eisenberg, will travel to Washington, D. C., to assist his father, Jack Eisenberg, in construction of a float to represent the State of Idaho in the presidential inaugural parade.

The float will represent the different attractions of Idaho, as well as its crops and industries. The parade will take place on January 20, all forty-eight states will be represented in the inaugural parade.

The Boise Junior College A cappella choir has announced its scheduled appearances for the 1952 Christmas season. Their first appearance was last Sunday afternoon at the Vesper services. Carol Crume, Esther Beeson and Barry Binning were the soloists for the afternoon.

Tomorrow morning the choir will appear performing several seasonal numbers at the Interfaith Council assembly. Wednesday noon Mr. Bratt will direct the choraleers at the Elks hall for the Red Cross blood drawing. A caroling trip has also been planned. Soloists are Sharon White and Esther Beeson.

Teacher of the Week

Would you like to know what the weather's going to be like tomorrow? Mrs. A. B. Carpenter will know, her husband's a weatherman, and supervisor of the weather stations for Idaho.

Mrs. Carpenter is a lover of symphonic and chamber music and has two daughters who are musicians, one is a junior accountant living in New York City, the other is married and lives in Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Carpenter graduated from The University of Washington at Seattle, where she majored in business education. She also did graduate work at the University of Washington and at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City. Mrs. Carpenter taught accounting at the University of Utah before coming here to Boise Junior College a year ago.

Mrs. Carpenter is teaching shorthand, typing and business math and says she finds Boise Junior College a very delightful place to work; enjoys the faculty and students.

BJC Plays NNC, C of I and Hawaiian All-Stars This Week

The Boise Junior College basketball team will battle for its third victory tonight at the high school gymnasium. Their opponent will be the Northwest Nazarene College of Nampa. Game time is 8:00.

Many basketball fans are looking forward to the game between our Broncos and the Hawaiian All-Stars. This game will be played next Friday night at the high school gymnasium.

The Hawaiian Ambassadors from Honolulu, Hawaii, with their accompanying Hawaiian hula dancers, are considered one of the most colorful attractions in basketball today.

The Ambassadors have an international touch and are quite unique in that the personnel represents a cross section of various racial extractions and truly symbolizes the Hawaiian Islands which are a paradise and the crossroads of the Pacific.

The Hawaiian Ambassadors have annually toured the United States, Canada, and Mexico since 1947. The team makes up for its lack of real height with speed, deception, and shooting accuracy and has proved rugged competition for the taller continental clubs.

The dancers are carefully screened and chosen from a large group of applicants for their ability, personality and charm. Most of them are employed professionally although, sometimes, an amateur is

Annual Alumni Formal To Be Held Dec. 29

Highlighting the social calendar for the Christmas vacation will be the annual Christmas alumni formal dance, December 29, from 9:00 to 12 midnight in the BJC ballroom.

General co-chairmen for the dance will be Sharon White and Terry Wagstaff. Assisting the co-chairmen will be: decorations, chairmen Marian Watson and Ilene Muhlestein; invitations chairman, Norma Mae Dike; hospitality chairman, JoAnn Hartzler; tickets and programs chairman, Marjorie Black; refreshments chairman, Kristin Mathews; intermission chairman, Dorothy Chatburn.

Jim Baker's dance band will furnish the music and carry out the theme of the dance, which is "I'll Be Home for Christmas."

Dancing will be held in the ballroom and also in the dining hall. The Union will be open for refreshments.

All BJC alumni are cordially invited to attend the dance and admission is by student activity tickets for the students of the college.
